

Writing Course Scoring Sheet

Completed for:

- Student: Akie Nishino
- Test: JPO Admin Writing Pre-Test

SCORE SUMMARY

Section	Task	Score	Max
A1	Error Correction	5	10
A2	Micro-Writing	11	15
B1	Email to a Foreign Office	12	25
B2	Administrative Explanation	13	25
C	Revision & Editing	14	25
Total		55	100

MARKER COMMENT SUMMARY

Section	Item	Comment
A1	Strengths	One response is fully corrected, and several others show a clear attempt at professional revision.
	Main Weaknesses	Residual errors remain after correction, for example Thank you for [space]. sending me your email and teach you updated information.
	Priority for Improvement	Build more reliable sentence-level editing control.

Section	Item	Comment
A2	Strengths	All three responses address the prompt, and I have attached the amended version of the notification is strong.
	Main Weaknesses	Tone and phrasing are uneven; examples include it takes two extra days to respond and the very bare Please explain a contradictory section....
	Priority for Improvement	Practice concise but professional 1-2 sentence responses.

Section	Item	Comment
B1	Strengths	Main purpose, one specific question, and a deadline are identifiable.
	Main Weaknesses	The response is severely underlength and underdeveloped; examples include Please explain a difference... and I could appreciate if you reply the inquiry.
	Priority for Improvement	Expand task response and improve email conventions.

Section	Item	Comment
B2	Strengths	Covers change, reason, and staff action in basic form.
	Main Weaknesses	Grammar and sentence control weaken clarity, especially in the central explanatory sentence The above step added to an application process help examiners... ; the response is also under the word requirement.
	Priority for Improvement	Improve sentence control in longer procedural explanations.

Section	Item	Comment
C	Strengths	The rewrite uses paragraphing and keeps the core situation.
	Main Weaknesses	Revision is limited, retains weak source features such as Dear Colleague , and introduces a new problem in the applicant ... not explained the procedure accurately.
	Priority for Improvement	Focus on tactful rewriting and stronger restructuring of source texts.

SECTION A1 SCORING TABLE (/10)

5 questions x 2 points each

Item	Score	Marker Notes
A1-1	1/2	Partly corrected. Thank you for [space], sending me your email is still ungrammatical, but the response shows a clear attempt to revise the sentence professionally.
A1-2	1/2	Mostly corrected, but not the same version as those we discussed remains awkward and inaccurate because those does not fit version .
A1-3	2/2	Fully acceptable. Please confirm whether the applicant has already submitted the missing documents or not is grammatically sound and professionally appropriate.
A1-4	0/2	Not correctly revised. Major errors remain in teach you updated information and do a lot of works , so the sentence is still not professionally usable.
A1-5	1/2	Partly corrected, but I would appreciate if and confirm the below points remain awkward for a professional correction task.
A1 subtotal	5/10	Mixed performance: one fully successful correction, three partial corrections, and one unsuccessful correction.

SECTION A2 SCORING TABLE (/15)

3 questions x 5 points each

Item	Score	Marker Notes
A2-1	3/5	The purpose is clear in I'm afraid it takes two extra days to respond , but we are preparing a response is repetitive and awkward.
A2-2	3/5	Adequate but limited. Please explain a contradictory section of an international guideline addresses the task, but it is too bare and direct for a stronger professional score.
A2-3	5/5	Strong short-form response: I have attached the amended version of the notification is clear, accurate, and professionally appropriate.
A2 subtotal	11/15	Uneven micro-writing control; one strong response and two adequate but limited responses.

SECTION B1 SCORING TABLE (/25)

Category	Score	Marker Notes
Accuracy	3/5	Meaning is mostly clear, but there are noticeable wording problems such as asked IPO the above inquiry and I could appreciate if you reply the inquiry .

Category	Score	Marker Notes
Organisation	2/5	The response has basic paragraph separation, but it is very short and not developed as a full administrative email.
Professional Tone	3/5	Tone is broadly professional, but it is too direct and underdeveloped for strong inter-agency communication. Phrases like Please explain a difference are understandable, but not tactful or polished.
Task Achievement	2/5	The purpose, one question, and a deadline are present, but the background is thin, the content is underdeveloped, and the response is only about 47 words against the required 120-160 .
Revision & Editing Skills	2/5	Limited evidence of shaping; the writing remains rough and the message reads more like notes than a finished email.

Section B1 subtotal: 12 / 25

SECTION B2 SCORING TABLE (/25)

Category	Score	Marker Notes
Accuracy	2/5	Frequent grammatical problems affect control, especially in The above step added to an application process help examiners and is the same as holder(s) of national registration or not.
Organisation	3/5	The response covers what changed, why it matters, and what examiners should do, so the ideas are generally understandable. However, transitions are weak and the central explanatory sentence is difficult to follow, which makes the flow uneven.
Professional Tone	3/5	Tone is generally suitable for an internal explanation, though the language is plain and sometimes awkward.
Task Achievement	3/5	The main content points are present, but the response is only about 84 words against the required 100-130 , and the explanation of why it matters is not fully developed.
Revision & Editing Skills	2/5	Some deliberate shaping is visible, but phrasing remains rough and sentence control is limited.

Section B2 subtotal: 13 / 25

SECTION C SCORING TABLE (/25)

Category	Score	Marker Notes
Accuracy	3/5	Meaning remains clear, but there are noticeable grammar and wording problems, including the applicant has already contacted us two times, but not explained the procedure accurately. These errors affect professionalism, but do not make the message hard to understand.

Category	Score	Marker Notes
Organisation	3/5	The rewrite uses paragraphing, so the ideas are generally understandable, but the progression is uneven and transitions are weak. The links between the unclear procedure, the applicant's contact, and the request for revision are not fully clear.
Professional Tone	3/5	Tone is broadly professional, but it is not fully tactful. The response retains weak source phrasing such as Dear Colleague and repeats your draft in a way that feels somewhat blunt.
Task Achievement	3/5	The rewrite addresses the task and makes the message reasonably clear, but it does not improve the email strongly enough to make it fully clear, polished, and logically structured.
Revision & Editing Skills	2/5	Some improvement is visible, but the revision remains limited. It retains weak features from the source and introduces a new content problem by shifting blame to the applicant in the applicant ... not explained the procedure accurately.

Section C subtotal: 14 / 25